

Post exchange restaurant and market, Fort Huachuca, in the early 1930s (note Model A Ford Coupe). Building was completed July 28, 1920. Photo courtesy of Mrs. Henry Jones, wife of Sgt. Henry Jones, 25th Infantry, ret. 1961. @1930.00.00.007

25th Infantry Enlisted man and dog next to car. @1930.13.00.003

The gas station at Huachuca in the late 1930s. @1930.13.00.011

Post theater No. 1 in winter. @1930.15.00.053

Apache Scout William Major with an officer of the 25th Infantry in the 1930s.

@1930.15.00.072

An Apache Scout in costume with infantrymen of the 25th Infantry in the early 1940s.

@1930.15.00.081

An army car fitted with Signal Corps transmitter and receiver in 1932. @1932.13.00.001

The 25th Infantry Band on parade at Huachuca in 1933. Photo courtesy Mrs. Robert S. Knox. @1933.00.00.007

Post theater (bldg. no 41305) about 1934. Today it is the Museum Annex. Photo courtesy of Col. Joseph J. Fraser, Jr., Chemical Corps; the son of Capt. Joseph Fraser, he lived at Fort Huachuca as a boy, 1932-35. @1934.00.00.039

*W.P.A. workers work on an addition to the officers' club in 1936. U.S. Army photo.
@1936.13.00.001*

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Louis A. Carter turns the first shovel for the excavation for the new barracks in 1938. To his right is Lt. Col. Burton E. Bowen, 25th Infantry, commanding the post. U.S. Army photo. @1938.06.11.001

Airfield at Fort Huachuca's main gate in 1938. A U.S. Army O-46 Douglas Observation plane is parked. U.S. Army photo. @1938.13.00.017

Machine Gun Company, 25th Infantry, at Fort Huachuca in the late 1930s. Photo courtesy 1st Sgt. Samuel Baker. @1939.00.00.005

Troops of the 93d Division encounter a simulated gas attack in 1942. @1940.13.00.003

Tanks and men of the 93d Division at Huachuca in about 1943. @1940.13.00.013

*Soldiers arrive at Huachuca in the early 1940s for training. U.S. Army photo.
@1940.15.00.016*

Medical officers receive recognition from visiting Lt. Gen. Benjamin O. Davis in the early 1940s. U.S. Army photo. @1940.15.00.021

Interior of World War II barracks in 1942. U.S. Army Signal Corps photo (162/D1-42-698). @1940.15.00.090

Brig. Gen. Benjamin O. Davis and Col. Edwin N. Hardy stand in front of the fireplace in the post headquarters (now the museum). U.S. Army photo. @1940.15.00.112

Col. Edwin N. Hardy reviews the WAAC Company on Fort Huachuca's parade field in 1942. U.S. Army photo. @1942.00.00.041

*Dinah Shore signs autographs for members of the 93d Division at Huachuca in about 1943.
@1942.00.00.048*

The 93rd Infantry Division reactivated 15 May 1942 was the first all-negro division to be formed during World War II. Staff Sgt. William W. Wilson pulls some cactus stickers from Pvt. Thurman Brownlee at Huachuca in 1942. U.S. Army Signal Corps photo.

@1942.00.00.049

Members of Company F, 25th Infantry, march out of Fort Huachuca's cantonment area in 1942. U.S. Army Signal Corps photo. @1942.05.09.001

The chow line of Company F, 25th Infantry, Fort Huachuca, on 14 May 1942. U.S. Army Signal Corps photo. @1942.05.14.001

The Guard of Honor, 25th Infantry, loads on trucks at Huachuca on 19 May 1942. U.S. Army Signal Corps photo. @1942.05.19.001

The first members of the 32d and 33d Women's Army Auxiliary Corps to arrive detrain at Huachuca on 4 December 1942. They are welcomed by members of the 93d Infantry Division. U.S. Army photo. @1942.12.04.001

WAACs marching to their barracks in 1942. U.S. Army Signal Corps photo (95C-FH-42-145). @1942.12.05.001

Auxiliaries Ruth Wade and Lucille Mayo (left to right) demonstrate their abilities to service trucks as taught them at Fort Des Moines and put into effect at Fort Huachuca in December 1942. U.S. Army Signal Corps photo. @1942.12.08.001

Santa Claus arrives in a jeep for the Childrens' Christmas Program at Fort Huachuca on Christmas Eve, 1942. U.S. Army Signal Corps photo (95C-FH-42-583). @1942.12.24.001

The original enlisted barracks on Fort Huachuca's Old Post in about 1946.

@1942.15.00.016

*The Southern Pacific Railroad Station at Fort Huachuca in 1943. U.S. Army photo.
@1943.00.00.001*

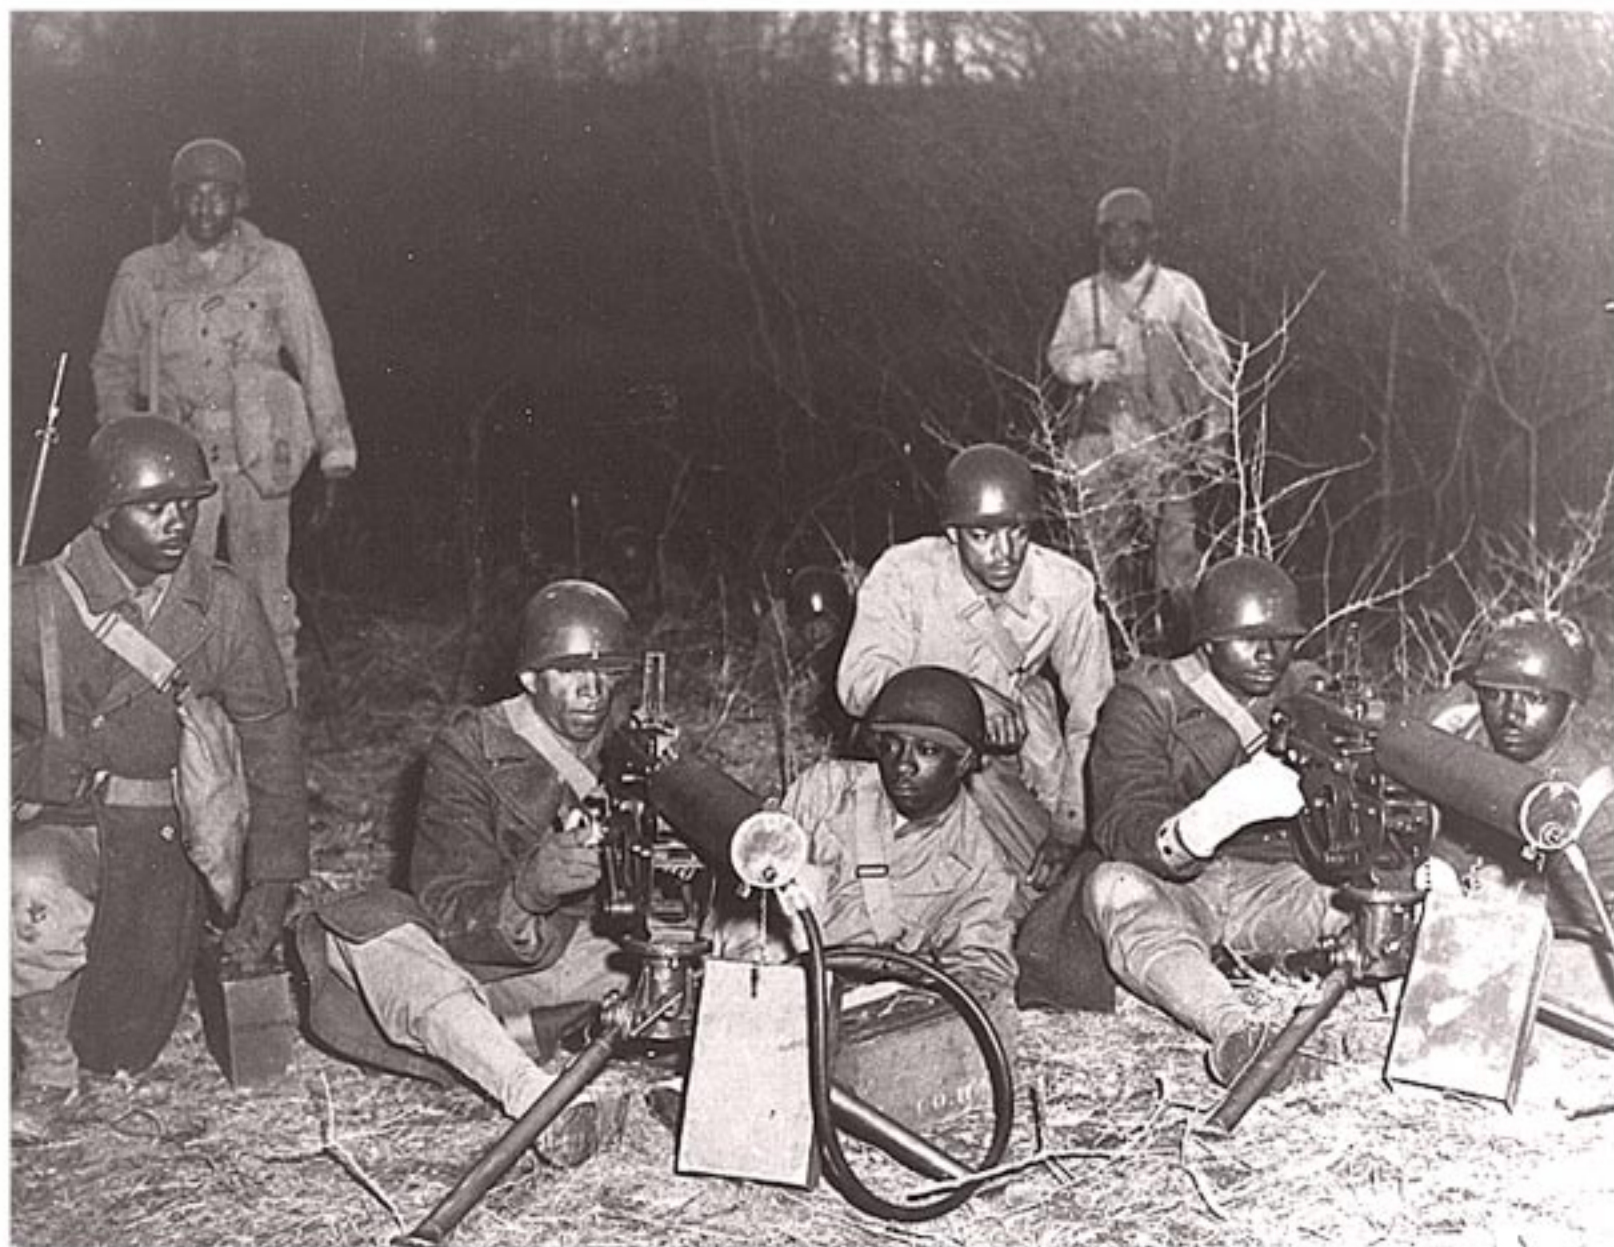

Col. Hardy, saluting, and visiting Brig. Gen. Benjamin O. Davis, standing in the bed of the vehicle, left, review the troops from the scout cars of the 758th Tank Battalion. U.S. Army photo. @1943.00.00.0011

Troops from Huachuca assault the ghost town of Charleston, Arizona, in which mock-ups were constructed to practice house-to-house fighting. Here the troops scale cargo nets on the banks of the San Pedro River, practice that would come in handy for the island landings the division would make in the Pacific. @1943.00.00.015

93d Division Artillery on Huachuca's ranges. @1943.00.00.126

Firing exercises of the 93d Infantry Division at Huachuca in 1943. @1943.02.12.001

*Soldiers of the 92d Infantry Division train on Huachuca's ranges. U.S. Army photo.
@1943.02.26.001*

An anti-aircraft vehicle of the 93d Infantry Division at Fort Huachuca in 1943. U.S. Army photo. @1943.06.00.004

In a multiple wedding at Fort Huachuca on 5 June 1943, brides Auxiliaries Mattie Elliott, Irene Stewart, and Etta Mae Pullum marry respectively Capt. Willie D. Thompson, Pfc. Allen A. Harris, and Private Erle Gales. The presiding chaplain is James A. Wactor. U.S. Army photo. @1943.06.05.001

*The funeral procession of Sgt. Andrew J. "Duke" Wells in September 1943. U.S. Army
photo. @1943.09.06.001*

Fort Huachuca's headquarters in World War II, later to become the Fort Huachuca Museum. @1943.13.00.023

Fig. 14. History Will Judge Us By Our Deeds, c.1965. Courtesy of Riva Yares Gallery; photo by Craig Smith

U.S. M4 Light Tank at Huachuca in 1944. @1944.00.00.002

Lt. Gen. Lucian K. Truscott, Jr., new commanding general of the Fifth Army in Italy, talks with soldiers of the 92d Infantry Division after their heroic stand in the hills above Viareggio in 1944. @1944.00.00.038

Ceremony at Brock Field on 9 May 1945 observes "VE Day." @1945.05.09.001